Dying as an Art	Spark David	Sylvia Plath, brilliant young American poet, is plagued by mental illness and subjected to harsh treatment. Her psychosis originated from the sudden death of her father when she was only eight years old. She treats this as a betrayal and, frustrated in her attempt to follow him by suicide, forms the ambition to re-create him through another.	GWtyp - D	14790

		A man calls at a woman's remote country cottage needing to use the phone claiming his car has broken down. Polite conversation begins to turn more pointed as the woman comes to realise that her visitor is not the casual passer-by he originally purported to be. She herself is also the keeper of vital important secrets for many years . . . . Finally and tragically she discovers that her visitor is less interest in what she may know than her ability to keep her knowledge to herself.

Percival, the Performing Pig [Percival the Performing Pig]	Owen Dilys	On old Macdonald's farm animals came from miles around to hear Percival sing. Percival was taken to London for a career in opera but devised a scheme to get home to the farm. Parts not only for farm animals but the scenery ordered by the stage manager has failed to turn up so actors have to represent a house, trees and so on.	YT	15347

Remembrance Night	Cairns John & Lovell Marie	Inspired by the life of a dementia sufferer illustrating some events of his life as he ages from 18 to 91. Ten short scenes, five set in present, others as flashbacks performed in mime.  GW 2018 first performed by Washington Theatre Group in Durham & Sunderland Festival .	GWTyp-R	15599
Reminding Of St Kilda, A	Simpson Keith	PDF copy held on Library laptop and flashdrive. To be printed as required for perusal - contact robertsimpson438@btinternet.com for performance copies. SYNOPSIS Woven into the historical facts surrounding the evacuation of St. Kilda 80 years ago, this play tells the fictional story of Catriona, a ninety five year old survivor living out her final days in a Glasgow nursing home in 2010. She reveals to her nurse, in flashback, a poignant story of a lost boyfriend who died, proving his love for her, just two days before the evacuation.	PDFcopy	1617
